

Target Develop all responses further by adding opinions and reasons.

Step 1 Where to start.

This is a target that you need to work on in class, use the notes in your books to help you with this. Avoid just using 'me gusta', instead think about the other expressions that you have learnt and try to incorporate these. I've copied some of the key structures for expressing opinions into the pages below. Create a revision resource of the key vocabulary and structures covered here and beginning learning them by heart.

Try teaching someone in your family the rules. Did you know that you we Learn 10% of what we read, 20% of what we hear but 95% of what we teach others?

Step 2 Putting it into practice

Your challenge is to include at least one of these structures in every piece of work. When you do this highlight it in your work and get your teacher top check it. Avoid using the same structure more than one a week to ensure you practise a variety of forms.

What else can I do to help me learn it?

Practising regularly is the key to success here. Flashcards are great for learners who work very well with visual clues.

J'adore

J'aime

Je n'aime pas

Je déteste

Je préfère

The basics: give your own opinion and justify it.

Most verbs end in -er in the dictionary, e.g. aimer. For the present tense, you replace the -er ending like this:

j'aime I like tu aimes you like
il/elle aime he/she likes

To make a verb negative, use ne ... pas around the verb.

je n'aime pas I don't like

Make your answer as interesting as you can.

• Use intensifiers: assez quite très very

• Use connectives: et and aussi also mais but

Give reasons for your opinions using parce que.
